SECTION E: COMPREHENSION (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

One day during the holidays, Ted and his friends carried their lunch and went to the National Park for a picnic. They found a tranquil spot beside a meandering stream. Adding beauty and colour to the scenery were the great variety of trees including the Banyan Tree, Yellow Flame Tree and Saga Tree.

5 Initially, everything was so peaceful that they seemed to be miles away from other people. Suddenly, they heard the rattling of loose boards on a bridge not far downstream. This noise was followed by the chugging of a large truck climbing the hill on the other side.

10 The boys ate lunch before taking a short nap under the shade of the trees. After a while, they were awakened by the tinkling noises of bell birds that were calling to one another in the tall trees. Strolling along the bank of the stream, the boys noticed a rabbit scurrying into the bushes. Curious, Ted ran towards it and fell. He had a minor cut on his kneecap. One of his friends offered him a plaster.

15 In the distance, they heard the murmur of a waterfall. Finally, they reached the waterfall that was roaring so loudly that they could hardly hear each other speak. They spent some time admiring the scenery and taking some photographs before heading home.

SECTION F: COMPREHENSION (5 X 2m = 10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

5 Ah Chye was the neighbourhood storyteller. Every evening after dinner, we would gather round the concrete bench at the floor of the block of flats and wait eagerly for her to appear. Her baggy black pants would flap around her thin legs, as she walked daintily towards us on her tiny, bound feet. She had been born in China at a time when it was the custom to bind some women's feet. A woman with bound feet usually came from a family belonging to a high social class. Walking gracefully would be the positive effect of the custom.

10 Ah Chye's white hair was gathered into a little knot at the nape of her neck, and held together with a single gold pin. Little wisps of her hair would blow out of place in the breeze and frame her face. It made her look beautiful in spite of her age.

15 Lowering herself slowly into the garden seat, she would smile at us. Though she was old, she had a complete set of perfectly-formed teeth. All eyes would focus on her face, taking in the twinkling eyes, finely-shaped nose, and earlobes made longer by the weight of her gold earrings pulling them downwards for more than seven decades.

20 Ah Chye would begin by telling us stories of China. We learnt a great deal about the customs and habits of the Chinese there in the early twentieth century. Occasionally, she would tell us about her experiences during the Second World War when the Japanese invaded China and took control of the country. She never blamed the Japanese for their wartime misdeeds. Nevertheless, the horrors of war came out very clearly and filled us all, young as we were, with a greater understanding about war.

Answer these questions. Write your answers in complete sentences.

36. Which word in Paragraph 1 has the same meaning as 'anxiously'?

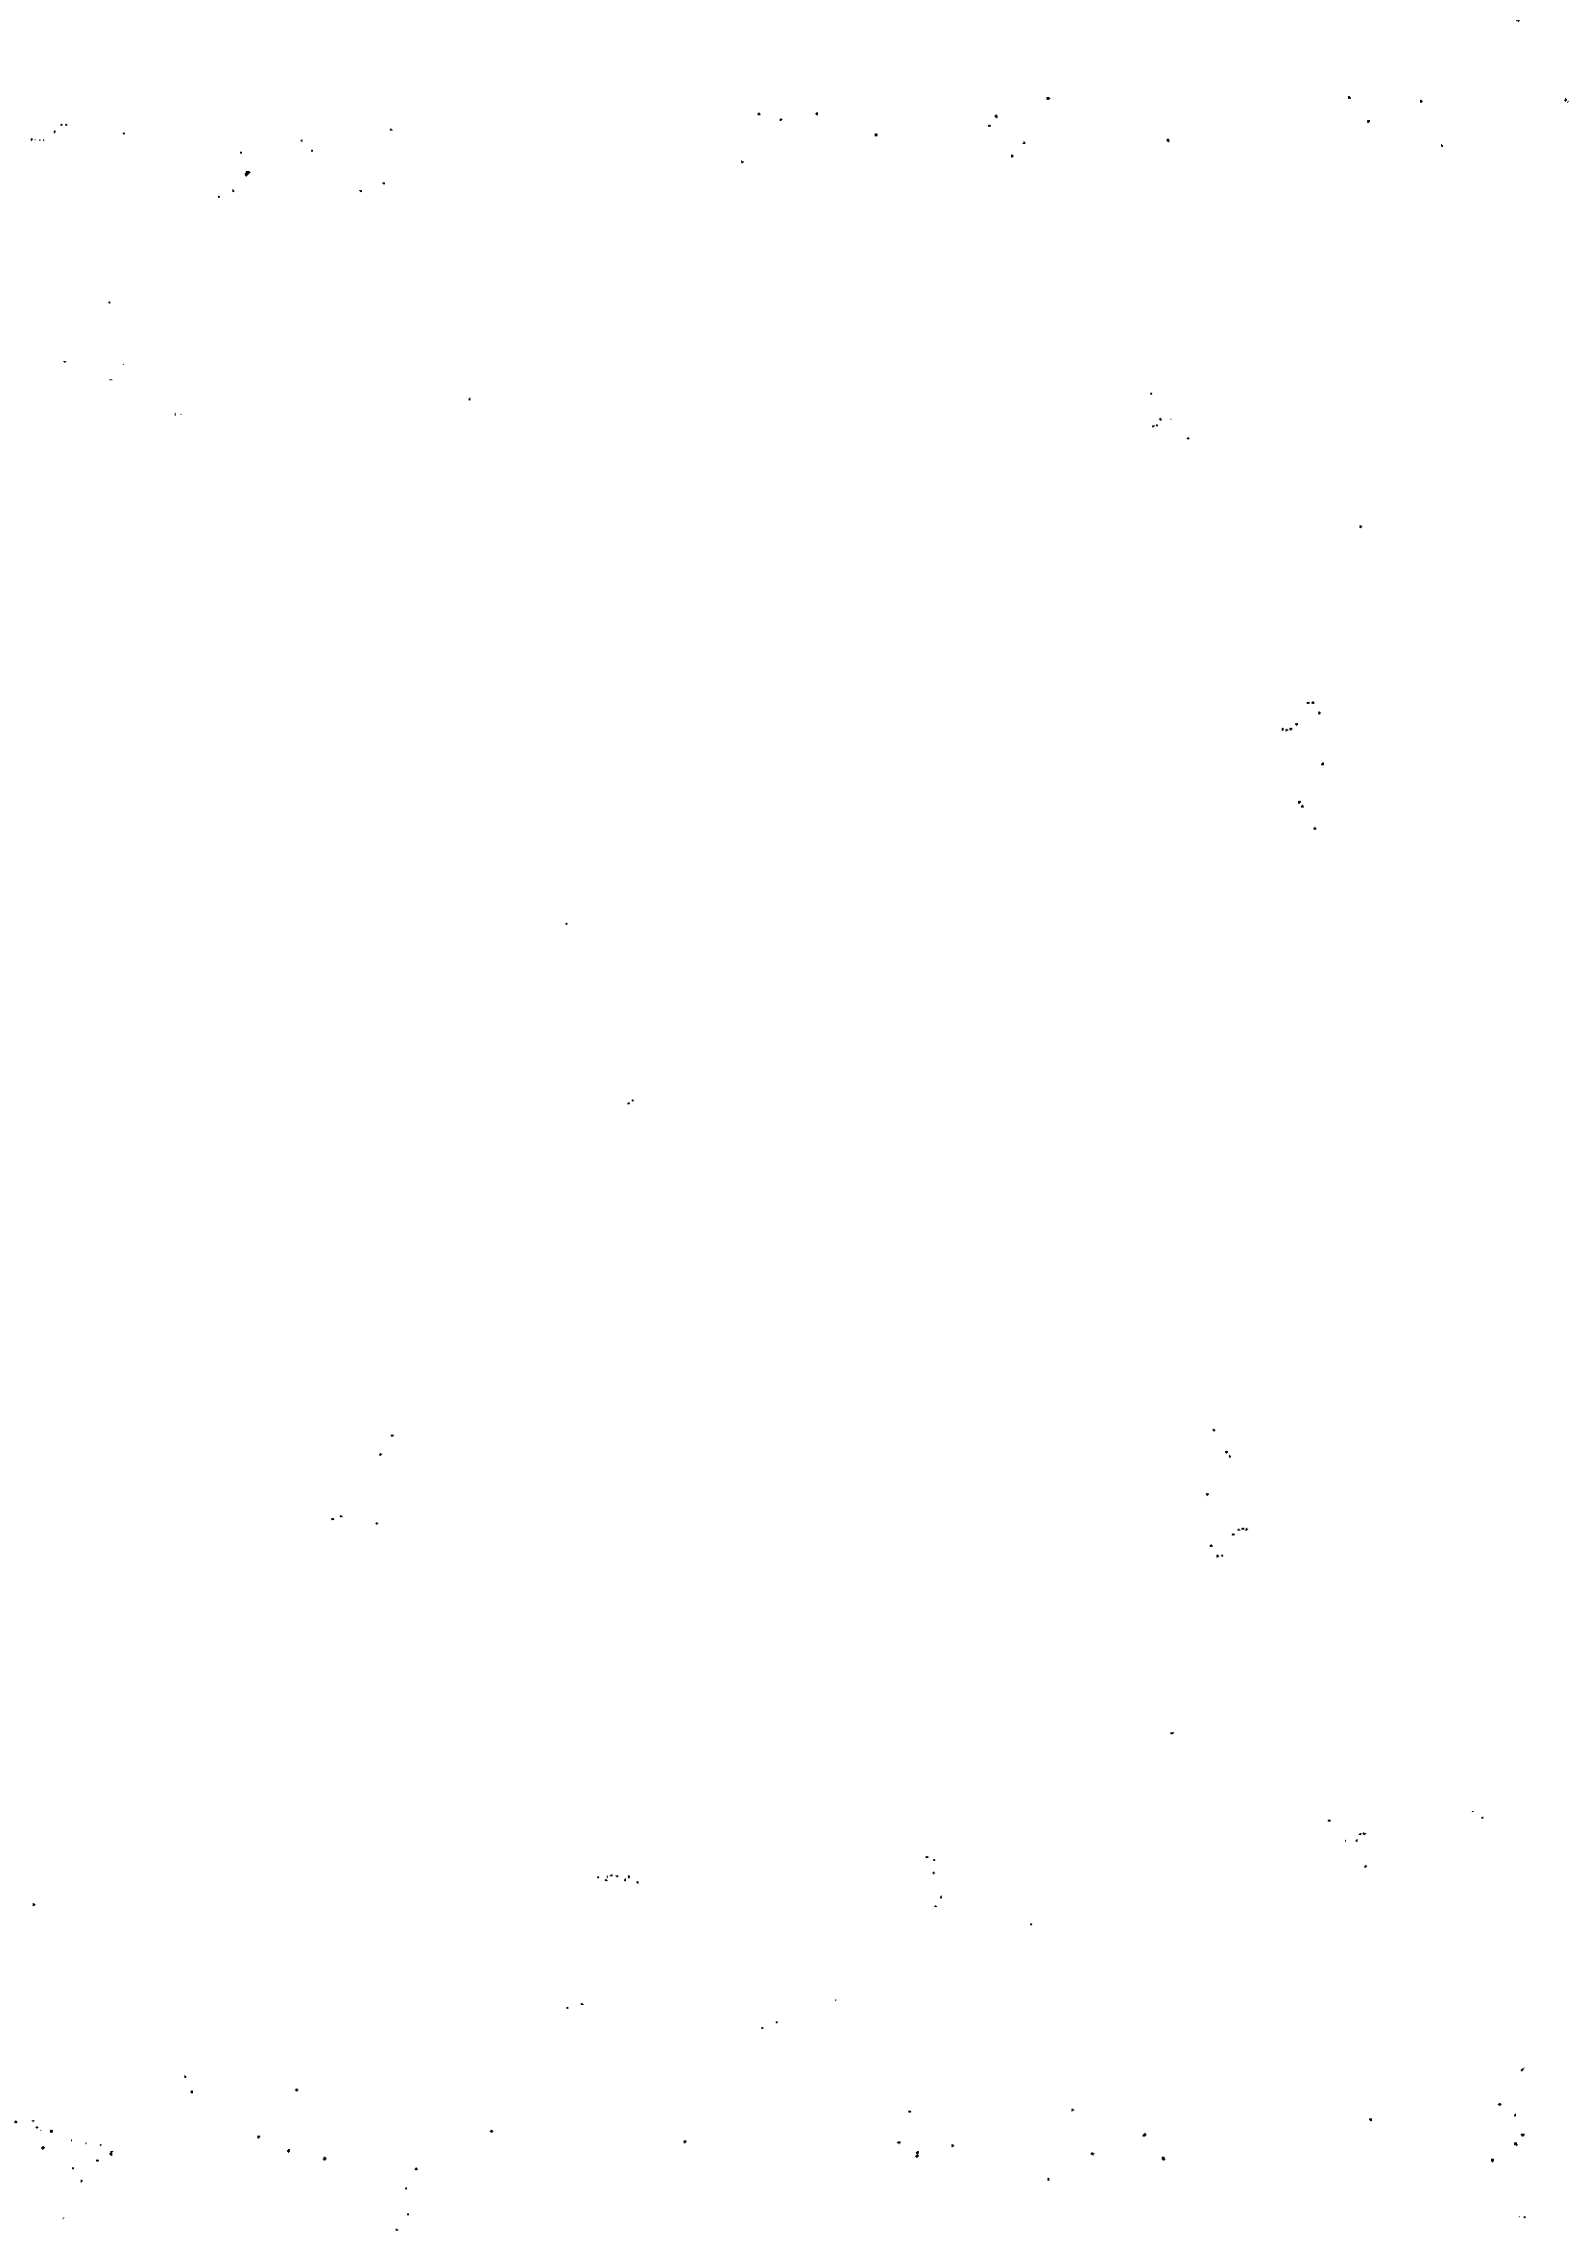

37. Give 2 reasons why the feet of some women in China were bound.

38. Which two-word phrase in Paragraph 2 tells us that Ah Chye was old?

39. Why were Ah Chye's earlobes long?

40. How did the writer learn about China?
