It was a breezy morning, making it the perfect weather to be outdoors. Ryan and Zack were at the park to take pictures of different plants and insects for their Science project. As they were examining the different plants in the park, Zack spotted a beehive on one of the trees.

"Look, Ryan! Let's knock the huge beehive down and get some honey!" 5
Zack pointed out excitedly.

"I don't think that's a good idea. We should not disturb the bees, Zack. They may attack us," Ryan cautioned, showing his disagreement. Ryan's warning fell on deaf ears.

Zack simply scoffed at Ryan and proceeded to pick up a small stone. He 10 took aim and threw it at the hive. The stone hit the hive, causing it to sway violently.

Just when Zack was about to go for a second throw, a swarm of bees suddenly emerged from the hive, provoked by the attack on their home.

After what seemed like an eternity, the bees withdrew. Zack looked at the numerous stings that covered both their bodies. His rash action had put them in great danger. He hung his head in shame and tearfully apologised to Ryan.

Jamie had been in the jungle before and all the trails were familiar to him. 5
However, this time Jamie seemed to be taking longer than expected to find the campsite. All the trees looked the same. "Which was the right path?" he wondered and started to panic. Jamie stood still. Not a sound was heard in the jungle. It was as though everything had come to a standstill. He had no idea what time it was as he had left his watch and handphone at the campsite. To 10

The fear of being lost in the dark jungle soon overwhelmed him. He felt a chill run down his back. Wild thoughts ran through his mind. He wanted to scream but could not find his voice. Jamie started to run in the direction where he thought the voice was coming from. Soon, he found the path that led to the campsite and saw his friends. They were all relieved to see him. Jamie ran to them with gladness and apologised for being late.

Jamie's friends exclaimed anxiously, "Do you know how dangerous it is to 20 leave the campsite without permission from the camp leader and go hiking on your own? We have been searching for you for the past five hours!" Upon hearing that, only then did Jamie realise how long he had been lost in the jungle.
